On June 30, Axinn partner and chief workplace culture & opportunity officer Leslie Overton will speak on the “Novel Antitrust Theories in Health Care and Life Sciences Matters” panel at the American Health Law Association’s Annual Meeting, being held June 20 to July 2 in San Diego.

Agency investigations and the latest merger guidelines portend increased antitrust scrutiny of companies operating in the healthcare and life sciences industries. Panelists will discuss legal and economic aspects of less explored antitrust theories, such as alleged harm from serial acquisitions, reduced innovation, rebate bundling, patent listings, algorithmic collusion, and steering to integrated pharmacy and physician networks.
