Caroline Boisvert is an associate in Axinn's Antitrust and Litigation groups, representing clients in a wide variety of high-profile antitrust litigations and complex commercial disputes. For example, Caroline is currently representing Google in multidistrict antitrust litigation related to Google's ad technology business and defending a global pharmaceuticals company against antitrust claims in one of the largest multidistrict litigations in the United States. She previously contributed to the successful defense of chess grandmaster Magnus Carlsen against antitrust and defamation claims arising from the high-profile chess cheating scandal. Caroline also maintains an active pro bono practice assisting immigration clients, such as Afghan refugees, with asylum cases.

Prior to joining Axinn, Caroline was a law clerk to the Honorable Paul V. Niemeyer of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Fourth Circuit. Caroline's previous experience includes practicing in the litigation department of a global law firm, where she represented clients in complex civil and criminal litigation and enforcement matters, including appeals.

Caroline earned her JD at Georgetown University Law Center. While in law school, she served as the senior articles editor for the Georgetown Law Journal and worked as a judicial intern for the U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia. Caroline holds an BS in Foreign Service from Georgetown University.
