Sheya Jabouin is an associate in Axinn's Antitrust group. She represents clients in high-stakes civil litigation, class actions, multidistrict litigation, and investigations across industries, including financial services, consumer products, health care, aviation, big tech, and insurance. Sheya is also a thought leader in compliance and risk management related to emerging technologies, including artificial intelligence and algorithmic decision-making.

Sheya has experience supporting matters through all phases of litigation, from discovery through trial, including preparing and defending depositions, working with expert economists, drafting expert reports and briefs, and supporting trial preparation in complex competition and commercial disputes. She also advises clients on regulatory and enforcement issues, including matters involving the U.S. Department of Justice Antitrust Division and the Consumer Financial Protection Bureau.

Sheya maintains an active pro bono practice focused on immigration, reproductive justice, Section 1983 claims, and domestic violence matters. She has successfully represented clients in immigration proceedings and was part of a trial team that briefed and argued a matter on behalf of a victim of domestic violence before the New Jersey Superior Court.

Before entering private practice, Sheya served as a paralegal at the Federal Trade Commission in both the Office of the Commissioner and the Bureau of Consumer Protection. She also interned for the Honorable Robert W. Lehrburger of the U.S. District Court for the Southern District of New York. Sheya earned her J.D. from The George Washington University Law School and her B.A. from Dartmouth College.
