On May 29, Axinn partner Bradley Justus will speak on a panel entitled, “Digital economy enforcement with a focus on data and AI” at the International Bar Association’s Competition Mid-Year Conference, being held May 28-29 in Amsterdam.

The panel will explore the current challenges facing digital market regulations, discuss ways to enhance regulatory frameworks and assess the effectiveness of these measures from both European, American and African perspectives. It will also consider how competition authorities can administer enforcement penalties, promote fair and balanced regulation without slowing innovation, address data privacy concerns and manage the interests of both gatekeepers and consumers.
