Ross Blau is an associate in Axinn's intellectual property group. His practice involves counseling and litigation for generic pharmaceutical products and biosimilar products, as well as mechanical devices, semiconductor technology, and other industries. His practice also includes litigation on complex antitrust cases involving intellectual property-related issues, such as price fixing, sham litigation, inequitable conduct, and standard-setting activity.

Ross has also analyzed and litigated various regulatory issues, including those concerning FDA and the USPTO.

Ross' experience also extends to copyright/trademark disputes and counseling regarding trade secrets. Further, Ross has worked on transactional issues involving analyses of various contractual terms with large potential stakes.

Ross has also developed various big data approaches to analyzing litigation and regulatory issues, including analyzing various product and patent portfolios to provide counseling to numerous companies.

Ross earned his JD at Washington and Lee University School of Law. During law school, Ross authored portions of an amicus brief submitted to the U.S. Supreme Court in Halo Elecs.

Inc. v. Pulse Elecs. Inc. and Stryker Corp. v. Zimmer Inc. He holds an AB from The University of Chicago.
