On March 11, Axinn partner Jimmy Attridge will speak on “The Impact of a New Administration on Cartel Conduct” panel at Global Competition Review’s Cartels Conference in Washington, DC.

With a shift in administration in the U.S., the approach to antitrust enforcement, including cartels, could see significant changes due to shifts in agency leadership, policy, and enforcement priorities. Panelists will answer questions such as:

- How will the new administration’s priorities influence anti-cartel enforcement strategies and targets?
- Will a change in FTC and DOJ leadership see collusion theories used to deter ESG efforts?
- How could U.S. policy changes impact international cooperation against cartels?
